RETAILERS PLANNING FOR FALL OPENING SEPT. 24th

Award To Be Made For Best Decorated Window; Many Gifts Provided by Redwood City Merchants For Local Talent Competition

Members of the Redwood City Retailers, an association of Redwood City retail merchants, met at the rooms of the Redwood City Chamber of Commerce Wednesday to discuss plans for a big fall opening to take place on September 24.

It is planned as a part of this event to have an open-air program at 8 o'clock of that evening on Webster street at the side of the county court house.

Practically every merchant in Redwood City will provide a gift valued at at least $5, and these will be displayed in the windows of the merchants marked with a card to indicate that they are the gifts of these merchants. These gifts will be given to those providing local talent according to the applause of the adulence. A grandstand will be erected on Webster street beside the courthouse, and it is here that the program will take place.

Awards are also to be made by the Retailers for the best decorated windows, these to be judged at 7 o'clock on the evening of September 24. The latest fall styles, and newest creations in every line of goods will be features of the window display.

The meeting Wednesday evening was well attended by the merchants of Redwood City and was presided over by the president, James Hearne.

Real Estate Tax Cuts Are Being Sought

National Organization Plans To Seek Solution To Problem

CHICAGO, Sept. 12 (UP)—Possible reduction of real estate taxes and reduction of property owners against unfair tax levies is the aim of the national movement toward organizing porperty owners with real estate men throughout the country.

A three-way membership basis for the organization is recommended by the National Association of Real Estate Boards. This plan would provide for local representation of interests of property owners through the local real estate board, representation in state legislation through the state association, and national representation through the national board.

Members of property owners divisions of real estate boards in the following nine cities already are affiliated with the National Property Owners Division: Asheville, N. C.; Madison, Wis.; Trenton, N. J.; Detroit and Pontiac, Mich.; Oak Park and Harvey, Ill.; New Orleans, La.; and Redwood City, Cal.

An intensive research in the field of state and local taxation to determine feasible means of lessening the tax burden on real estate, is being conducted by the National Property Owners Division in collaboration with the University of Chicago. In this investigation the National Association has secured co-operation of the United States Building and Loan League, the National Association of Building owners and Managers, and the Mortgage Bankers Association of America.

The research is planned to determine the following questions:

1. Are state income taxes a method of relieving real estate of some of its tax burden?.
2. Can sales taxes be used as a means of relief?
3. Are constitutional and statutory limitations on taxes and public indebtedness effective?
4. What miscellaneous city revenues can be developed to make the real estate levy more equitable?

Two examples of the way in which united property owners can protect their interests are cited by the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

In Illinois property owners divisions are drafting an amendment to the state constitution to remove the archaic limitation of tax uniformity. This limitation has allowed real estate to bear more than 75 per cent of the Illinois tax burden in a state where real estate is estimated to represent less than 50 per cent of the state's wealth.

The property owners division of the Detroit real estate board is planning court action against a state plumbing code which the board and other organizations have declared to be "an excessive and unnecessary requirement on the public." Detroit property owners hope this action will lead to a judicial expression as to the lengths to which the state may go in exercise to police power through the vehicle of codes.

Kiwanians Hear Talk on Early Days in State

Grand Nephew of State's First American Governor In Address Here

The 80th anniversary of the admission of the State of California into the Union was fittingly celebrated Wednesday at the Redwood City Kiwanis club with an address by John Burnett, well-known attorney of San Jose, and a great nephew of Peter M. Burnett, the first governor of California under the state constitution.

In his talk Burnett reviewed the history of the state from the cession by Mexico by the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo to the final acceptance of the state into the Union. The talk was thoroughly enjoyed by the Kiwanians and afforded a rich store of information concerning the formative days of the state's government.

The chairman of the meeting was A. S. Ligouri, secretary of Redwood Parlor of Native Sons, a position he has held for many years. An added feature of the meeting was the musical numbers supplied by Pasquale Penna, who played accordian solos, and Duncan Reynard who sang comedy numbers accompying himself on the banjo.

Rolph Is Friend To All; Hobby Is S. M. Co. Ranch

Future Governor Is Thorough Californian; Raised In San Francisco

By HOMER L. ROBERTS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 10. (UP)—He has a twinkle in his eye and greets you with a handshake you can feel. Whether you be of high or low estate, you receive a broad smile and often a friendly pat on the back—when you meet Mayor James Rolph Jr., California's next governor.

When he takes office in Sacramento next January, Rolph will bring to the position one of the most charming personalities to be found in public life anywhere.

Immaculately tailored, invariably wearing a buttonhole carnation or gardenia, Mayor Rolph is a striking and distinguished figure. He is 61 years old, of medium stout build, has a ruddy complexion and iron-gray hair.

Born in that part of San Francisco known as "south of the slot," Rolph got his start in life as a messenger boy for a shipping concern. His education was received at Valencia, Agassiz and Haight public schools, Trinity college and Horace Mann school from which he was graduated in 1888.

It was in the hectic days after the great fire of 1906 that Rolph first attained prominence. He was named to head the Mission district relief association, ministering to the wants of 75,000 victims of the disaster.

Rolph first ran for mayor in 1911, opposing Mayor P. H. McCarthy, then president of the Building Trades council. He served four years, being re-elected in 1915, the year of the Panama Pacific International Exposition.

In 1908 Rolph ran for governor of California on three tickets—Republican, Democratic and Progressive, winning the nomination of the latter two but not his own party, the Republican. This disqualified him from running at the general election.

Two banks in the Mission district owe their existance to Rolph, who founded them. He also established a shipping company, and has served as director of several institutions. During the world war his personal fortune is said to have shrunk by several millions, part of which he later recovered.

He has served as president of the Merchants' exchange, a director of the Shipowners. Association, director of the San Francisco chamber of commerce, and almost a perpetual leader of various Mission district associations.

Seven medals of honor have been conferred upon him by foreign nations for service during the war and courtesies shown to visiting delegations. In 1900 Rolph married Anne Marshall Reid. They have two daughters and one son, all grown. Rolph belongs to the Episcopal church and is a member of nearly every club in San Francisco, including the Press club.

His hobby is his thousand-acre ranch, where he likes to get into old clothes, a slouch hat, and just "potter around."

MILLBRAE CROSSING CAUSE OF DISPUTE

This Time Disputed Crossing Is Closed by Workmen From Southern Pacific Railroad; Restraining Order Granted District Attorney

The fight of the county to prevent the closing of Millbrae avenue at Millbrae was being continued this week, but this time against the Southern Pacific company. The crossing was closed by Southern Pacific workmen Wednesday.

This is the second time that the crossing has been closed, having been closed for the first time in June when the right of way was barred by the West Coast Procelain Company. It was reopened when District Attorney Swart secured a restraining order, and on August 13 secured from Judge H. D. Gregory a temporary injunction.

When told of the closing by Southern Pacific company of the same crossing, District Attorney Swart went to Millbrae and investigated the closing. He talked to the foreman in charge of the crew which was erecting the baricade, and then returned here and prepared a restraining order which he had signed by Judge Buck yesterday.

The road which it is sought to close is one of the important links between the Bayshore highway and El Camino Real. The pottery firm denies having had any part in the present closing of the crossing. A permanent injunction to keep the crossing open is being sought by District Attorney Swart.

Western Pacific Confident Of Peninsula Line Permit

Filing of Exceptions to Western Pacific by Southern Pacific Will Not Prevent Granting of Permit Is The Belief of Western Pacific

There is little danger of the Western Pacific Railway being denied a permit to construct its proposed peninsula line, according to Thomas P. Brown, publicity manager of the Western Pacific, who was in Redwood City Wednesday on business. The statement was made when Brown was asked regarding the result which might be expected from the filing of the Southern Pacific brief opposing the granting of the permit by the Western Pacific Company.

"We are not worrying," he stated, "it will take several months yet, but we are sure that the permit will be granted."

The Southern Pacific has filed an answer to the brief of the Western Pacific. This brief was filed last Friday.

When the news of the filing of the brief was received here Judge J. J. McGrath, president of the Peninsula Industrial Conference, announced the intention of that organization, composed of industrial and business organizations of the entire peninsula, to assist in the presentation of facts and to send a delegation to Washington if necessary.

The Peninsula Industrial Conference has been backing the Western Pacific in its petition from the start and has amassed a quantity of information concerning the industrial and transportation conditions here.

"The industrial development of the county's water front is the life blood of the county if we are to keep taxation within bounds. The lands must be developed and taxed so they can carry their share of the support of school buildings which must be constructed to keep pace with the growing population. This 30,000 acres of undeveloped waterfront land must carry its share of the taxes and relieve the strain of this tax burden on the man who comes to San Mateo county and builds his little bungalow and his children going to school. This development can only come with competing rail lines," stated McGrath.

William S. Tavis, Jr., one of the best-known polo players in the county and owner of a fine string of polo ponies, will appear Monday in the court of Judge Louis F. Kinnell of San Mateo and explain why his stables do not constitute a menace to the health of the community.

A warrent for Tevis's arrest was issued this week at the request of City Health Officer W. C. McLean of San Mateo, who charges that the Tevis stables are unsanitary and a public menace.

Tevis returned from Sacramento upon hearing that the warrent had been issued, and appeared before the meeting of the San Mateo city council Tuesday evening. He will be given a hearing by Judge Kinnell, in whose court the warrent was issued at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

Convicts Still Entitled to Aid

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 10. (UP)—Ex-convicts are eligible for aid under California's old age pension act, according to a ruling by Attorney General U. S. Webb to the state department of social welfare.

Webb explained in his opinion that, contrary to general belief, conviction of a felony does not deprive one of his citizenship nor is the citizenship suspended during such imprisonment. The only rights forfeited by a convict is the right to vote.

FLORENCE, Col., (UP)—This city does not know what a crime wave is. Nearly two months passed without a single arrest. Not even a traffic law violation was reported.

This was Mrs. Rhoda Ann Hillebrand, who as a child came from Salt Lake with her parents as a part of the Donner Party which was almost completely wiped out by the cold and starvation near Donner Lake.

Methodist Men Told of Visit To Leper Town

Frank Griffin In Address To Menokirk Club; Adopt Constitution

Frank Griffin, boys' physical director of the Sequoia Union High School, was the speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the men's club of the Methodist church, the Menokirk Club. He spoke on his recent trip to the leper colony on the island of Molokai, one of the Hawaiian islands.

The trip to the isolated colony is one seldom made by visitors to the islands, and one necessitating considerable going through of "red tape." Griffin, through the influence of one of the territorial doctors, was enabled to visit the spot, and was shown through the settlement by Superintendent Cook, in charge of the colony.

The story of his visit to the colony was told interestingly by the speaker and was enjoyed by the members of the club.

At this meeting A. M. Cuthbertson read a draft of a proposed constitution for the club which was adopted with slight changes. Officers were also elected at this meeting to serve for the coming year. They were B. E. Myers, president; Wm. T. Pierce, vice-president; C. R. Altman, secretary-treasurer.

Arrested Twice, Man Now Jailed

To be arrested twice by the same officer within a few minutes was the experience of J. M. Lyons, a steelworker, who was taken into custody Tuesday night at Menlo Park by Officer Frank Linter.

Lyons was arrested by Linter in front of a dance hall at Menlo Park on a charge of illegal possession of liquor. Lyons said that he wanted to return to the hall for his hat, and was allowed to do so by the officer, who shortly afterwards saw him attempting to leave by means of a window. A Substitute for Tree Sitting

To Governor O. Max Gardner of North Carolina goes the credit for the most, and perhaps the only constructive substitute for the idiocy of tree sitting. He says:

"I doubt if history records a stranger device for the entertainment and pleasure of those participating. I venture the belief that this startling new activity—or rather complete absence of activity—is symptomatic of nothing more serious than complete and spiritually devastating idleness and boredom. Now how much better it would be if, instead of becoming 'tree-sitters,' our boys and girls would become 'tree-setters,' and thus contribute something to the beauty, livableness and comfort of their homes."

Governor Gardner's suggestion is unanimously adopted. How to carry it into effect is another matter. If such brainless wonders prefer to sit in the top of a tree instead of live in their own homes, how in heaven's name could they grasp such a conception as beauty, livableness, to say nothing of comfort in connection with a home?

Our own theory is that this latest phenomenon proves Darwin was right. There never was a clearer demonstration or revision to type. Our greatest fear is that to plant more trees would be only to invite more tree sitting.

Where Has Business Gone?

There isn't any Santa Claus.

Some Redwood City business men have just discovered that truth. And they are all hot and bothered about it. For years "the stockings hung by the fireside" have been filled with satisfying regularity and liberality. People came in constantly and bought without argument. Everybody was having a wonderful time.

But something has happened. And the bewildered ones are asking each other, "Where nas business gone?"

Well, where has business gone?

The plain truth is that business hasn't gone anwhere. It is right here in Redwood City. Always has been. Always will be. But business nowadays is operating on the "cafeteria" plan. You've got to "help yourself." The chap who sits around waiting for "table service" is doomed to disappointment—and lots of it.

As John Wanamaker used to say: "There is always someone, someplace who wants to buy—and CAN buy—what you want to sell." If this "someone" no longer walks in the front door, it is plainly up to us to go out AFTER him. Find him! Tell him! Sell him!

We have no patience with Pollyanna platitudes and baseless bunk. Lets face the facts. Nobody is going to hand us anything. The folks who go after the business intelligently and earnestly will reap the rewards. The wailers and waiters are on the way out. This is the day of Doers.

The Silver Lining

Not that we care whether skirts go up or down, well, not much, anyway—but its interesting to learn that about 400,000 women, members of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs, have been on strike against long skirts. The Garment Retailers of America heard this the other day from Mme. Helene Volka, who is official stylist for the women's federation—and a great light broke over them. "We have refrained from buying new frocks," said Mme. Volka, as a protest against having foisted upon us styles becoming only to the young and slender." So it appears, women are now to make styles, instead of styles making women. If the styles "dictated by Paris" don't suit, the girls will go on wearing their old dresses a bit longer—and that's something a veteran husband and frock-provider can cheer.

The Loveliest Woman

A great-grandmother of eight, living in Minneapolis, has been awarded a $1,000 prize in a field of 20,000, as the 'loveliest woman." The award was made by a board of experts on photographs alone. Her face as it appears in the public printa, is lovely, and from it shines out a lovely soul.

Many young women are pretty, but the lovely women are those who have passed the half century mark. The older they grow the lovelier they become, and that loveliest of all love, mother love, enhances their loveliness.

Truth is tough. It will not break, like a bubble, at a touch; nay, you may kick it about all day, like a football, and it will be round and full at evening.—Holmes.

Plot to Discredit Hoover

Frank Kent, Democratic political writer, is credited by Representative Will R. Wood, Chairman of the Republican National Congressional Committee, with disclosing a 'plot' of John J. Raskob, Democratic National Chairman, to bring about "a systematic and malicious misrepresentation of the President."

Chairman Wood said:

"The plot of Mr. John J. Raskob to bring about a systematic and malicious misrepresentation of the President of the United States is disclosed by Mr. Frank Kent, nationally known Democratic journalist, in an article in the current issue of Scribner's magazine.

"From Mr. Kent's article it appears that a Mr. Michelson was employed at a large salary by Mr. Raskob to develop these misrepresentations of the President in every quarter of the United States, in an attempt to systematically undermine his influence to do service. These attacks, prepared by Mr. Michelson's bureau, are issued in the names of various persons who have shown themselves willing to be pawns in such practices. This scheme represents one of the most infamous incidents in American political history and it is to the credit of some Democratic leaders that they have refused to lend their names to its furtherance.

"I have a collection of these statements, issued almost daily over a period of more than a year, in which practically every act of the President, big or little, is challenged, slandered, maligned.

"The American people do not countenance this kind of politics. It is right and proper for Democratic leaders to criticize the policies of a Republican administration, but for Mr. Raskob to set up a paid organization almost at the beginning of this administration for the deliberate purpose of personal misrepresentation of the President of the United States is without parallel in American politics.

"That the President has endured this for seventeen months without complaint is a tribute to his high-mindedness and patience, and his sense of the dignity of his great office. Mr. Kent, himself a Democrat, has done a national service by his expose, for those who read his article no longer can put credence in anything emanating from Mr. Rasob's propaganda bureau."

Habits Most Powerful Factors in Shaping Lives

By S. W. STRAUS,
President American Society for Thrift

"Habit is second nature," said Montaigne, while a great Englishman, Lord Wellington, went even further and said, "Habit is ten times nature." There is an old proverb to the effect that it is "a thousand times easier to contract a new habit than to get rid of an old one."

The philosphers of the ages have given us observations as to the power and influence of habits and no one, we believe, will doubt the expediency of cultivating good habits and shunning those that are bad. We all can follow the good advice of St. Augustine that "habits if not resisted soon become necessity."

What has all this to do with thrift?

It has very much to do with it because those who set out to practice thrift have already won half the battle against bad habits.

There is no surer way of developing a system of life that is upbuilding and progressive than by practicing thrift. If you are not wasting your time in idleness nor your money in dissipation. You are not doing things that are tearing down your health. On the contrary you are spending your money, your time and your energies along lines that will be to your best interests.

But good practices must not be just of the hour or of the day. They must be systematic, habitual and permanent to be of real value.

The saving of one dollar in itself does not amount to much. What really counts is the saving of one dollar regularly every month, every week or every day. It is the regularity of the practice not the amount involved that is helpful.

Learn to cultivate thrift, not for the mere saving of money, but as a habit that shall stabilize your entire system of living.

Not Present Worry

In times past, statisticians predicted that the normal increase in world population would eventually bring about starvation conditions, and now economists are figuring out how long it will take to eat up world surpluses. It kind of looks as though one shouldn't worry too much about figures and prophecies.

If we must cry about business, let us all sit down on the curb and have a good cry together, and we will have enough water to relieve the drought.

Beliefs, institutions, and practices are important and significant in proportion as they serve the needs of mankind on earth here and now; in other words, to the degree in which they advance human interests and promote the good life.—Harry Elmer Barnes.

It Seems to Me
HEYWOOD BROUN

A number of high minded and morally inclined editorial commentators in New York are pleased because the police have arrested Earl Carroll and performers from his show "The Vanities." The moralists hold that Mr. Carroll defied the prevalent standards of the community and that legal action was necessary.

But these moralists are singularly ill informed in the strategy of ballyhoo. The plain truth of the matter is that Mr. Carroll, despite his protestations, welcomed the raid as much as the moralists did. The action of the police may be just the needed fillip to establish one of the most tiresome revues ever put on in a Broadway theatre.

Of course, Mr. Carroll must gamble with the possibility of a conviction, which would be costly both to him and the owners of the playhouse where his attraction appears. But since every production constitutes a risk, there is no reason to believe that he quails before this present chance.

Police Captains and the Art of Acting.

Obscenity convictions are hard to obtain against theatrical performances. The burden rests too heavily upon the prosecution. As a rule, the things complained of are not actual lines written down in back and white but some piece of business indulged in by a performer. The offense against decency may even consist of nothing more than a gesture or a grimace. And these are difficult things to bring to court.

For instance, in the case of "The Vanities" it is necessary for Acting Police Captain James J. Coy to get upon the witness stand and enact that part of Mr. Jimmy Savo's performance which seemed to him objectionable. I am not familiar with the dramatic equipment of this particular police captain, but the chances are that he will not do it very well. The actor, naturally enough, will protest that this is nothing like his own conception of the role. And the chances are that any magistrate or jury will agree that the original performer could not have been quite as bad as that.

Since the imitation will be admittedly an approximation, that benefit of the doubt which protects all defendants is likely to rise up as shield and buckler for Mr. Carroll. In advance of a final decision I predict that no penalties will be assessed against the producer. In fact, he will profit by police interference, for the first page publiciity must necessarily spread the rumor that here is a theatrical event unusual and daring. And in all truth it is nothing of the kind.

Left alone, I haven't the slightest doubt that "The Vanities" would quickly fall of its own weight. Diverting ribaldry is rare and can be expected only from the masters. But this is a fact which reformers are slow to grasp. They will rush in to save the life of any tinpot venture into the erotic.

Exciting Slumberous Desires.

To me "The Vanities" was strictly sedative. Nor do I mean to speak as one so callous to conventionality that nothing shocks me. Not often have I been bored more profoundly. I hope Mr. Carroll escapes legal penalties and that the speedy failure of his show will follow an acquital.

Mr. Carroll's discretion and taste seem to me abominable, and yet I still have no enthusiasm for allowing the police to act as guardians of the name of Art. Indeed, in a contest between a dumb producer and a dumb policeman I am more or less neutral. The only wholly satisfactory conclusion would be a double knockout.

A few editorial writers have gone to the length of assuming that court action might quite properly mean a review of the blunders in taste committed by Mr. Carroll. One newspaperman has even suggested that the court might properly take steps to compel the producer to eliminate a scene in which a snatch of the Gettysburg Address follows a jazz dance by the chorus. I will agree that is possibly among the gravest of Mr. Carroll's crimes. I think that his former exploit, for which he was punished, of giving a girl a more or less public bath in champagne pales besides this new offense.

No Ordinance Covering Good Taste.

But this is not a matter included in the complaint. We have no satisfactory machinery by which bad taste can be made reviewable at law. The most effective and practical policy of rebuking Earl Carroll does not lie in trials and summonses. A concerted drive upon the part of the inhabitants of New York to stay away in droves would be helpful, and I also suggest loud and long-drawn yawns from those who happen to attend the rowdy cnarade.

Indeed, upon tne occasion of the first night I had in mind a personal revenge after I had been bored to tears by one long and plaguing number. Unfortunately the necessary equipment was not handy. Mr. Carroll has been struck by the idea of attacking prohibition by means of song and dance and tableaus. A dull and tedious song is interrupted periodicall yto show the signing of the Declaration of Indepe periodically to show the signing of the Declaration of Indespeaking at Gettysburg. The precise bearing of these exhibits upon the problem at hand was never apparent to me.

But as the business dragged on and on, throughout the punishing minutes of a soggy evening, I resolved that if I could only find an application blank for membership in the Anti-Saloon League I would sign on the dotted " before leaving the theatre.

If I were a moralist—and perhaps I may eventually become one— I would resent the aid which police are prone to give producers like Earl Carroll who have dug for themselves pits as deep and as dull as "The Vanities of 1930."

Love's Sacrifice

"Are you capable of taking on this work in your employer's absence?" he asked abruptly.

CONCERNING THE ACTION AND CHARACTERS

Sally Todd and Lois Montgomery leave home to seek their fortunes in New York.

Lois meets a young man whom she knew when she was a wealthy woman's secretary.

He and a chap named FRISBY show her and Sally little attention, but Lois' thoughts are chiefly on the problems of existence.

Lois finally gets a job with a firm of interior decorators. Sally struggles for a foothold in the movies. They have a hard time making both ends meet.

Sally enters hospital training, finally convinced that the films hold no future for her.

Lois is absorbed i nher own work.

During her employer's illness, she is sent to the palatial residence of James Walton to make a preliminary report.

CHAPTER 13

The Self-Made Man

Lois had finished her luncheon to the last drop of fragrant coffee and was toasting her feet before the log fire when a step caused her to look up.

She saw a man standing in the doorway, and something in his attitude suggested that he might have been there some time before she was aware of his presence. Though she didn't know it at the time it was characteristic of James Walton to size up other persons without being observed. It gave him a distinctive advantage. He regarded Life as a battle in which every move should be gauged in advance, if one wished to be successful.

He was tall and rather slender, with well-chiselled features and a shock of iron-gray hair. His eyes were gray and piercing, and his mouth was grim. Lois wondered whether he smiled . . . And suddenly he did, and his face was lighted, as if with an inner radiance, and she found herself curiously attracted to him.

"You are Mrs. Dunleigh?" he asked in a pleasant voice, coming into the room. "I am sorry that the day turned out so badly."

Lois explained her employer's unavoidable absence, and though he accepted her excuses with all courtesy, she felt that he was displeased. His black brows drew together.

"Are you capable of taking on this work in your employer's absence?" he asked abruptly.

Lois told him that she was merely to attend to the preliminaries, and that Mrs. Dunleigh would assume that work as soon as possible.

Walton frowned. "Really, it is only wasting my time if you're not to do the work yourself," he told her irritably. "I detest repetition. Unless you can remember word for word what I tell you today, it would be better to call the whole thing off. You can't take shorthand?"

Lois confessed meekly that she couldn't. She found herself helpless before the obvious displeasure of the man. But suddenly he motioned her to follow him.

"I'll show you the house and give you a brief sketch of what I require," he said.

She followed him meekly. He led her through great echoing hallways with vaulted ceilings, up a winding stair with stone balustrades. The place was enormous. She felt as if she had wandered into an empty museum, but later, as her sensitive eye caught the majestic beauty of the architect's motif, she warmed to it. Walton had chosen to build a palace that might have been built by a Borgia. Perhaps its austerity found an echoing note in the man's nature. It was chill and lovely, marble-hard, and yet strangely rich.

The mosaics in the wall panels of the enormous salons fascinated her. She felt as if she had been transplanted into some Old World art gallery. She lost herself in the suggestion of the great old masters with which she had become familiar in her studies.

"You are the first person who has not expressed surprise when shown my house," he said abruptly.

"It is - -unusual," she confessed. "It makes one long for the opportunity to furnish it as it deserves to be furnished."

"Have you any idea how that should be?"

"Naturally. That is my business."

"Would you care to undertake the task?"

"But I am undertaking it," she protested. "We have the commission, have we not?"

He made an impatient gesture.

"I mean - - - personally. Will you undertake to do the job yourself - - and alone?"

She laughed and flushed. "You are flattering me now, Mr. Walton. I am only an assistant."

"You must start sometime. I have watched you. My house appeals to you as more than a mere job. Isn't that ture?. Why is it?"

She told him frankly. She said that his house challenged her. She had never seen anything quite like it before. One couldn't think of it in mere terms of rugs and chairs and tables. One saw a complete picture blended subtly in its details.

They'd wandered down to the main floor by that time. She had made notes faithfully, as Mrs. Dunleigh had bade her, but she didn't need them.

Walton said suddenly: "Tell Mrs. Dunleigh to ring me in the morning at my office."

With that, he made her an abrupt bow and left her. She stood staring at the door through which he had passed, amazed at his abrupt departure. And yet, curiously, that farewell seemed so much a part of the man that she couldn't resent his lack of courtesy.

The housekeeper entered and told her that the car was at the door and would be able to make the four-eighteen to New York. Lois thanked her, and five minutes later was being driven to the station.

She went back to the shop in time to close it after a dull day, and then rang up Mrs. Dunleigh. The maid said that Mrs. Dunleigh was in bed, and would appreciate it, if Miss Montgomery would come to see her. Lois went into the rainy dusk, tired, a trifle bedraggled now, and longing for a negilee and a hot dinner in her own little apartment. When she detailed the events of the day, Mrs. Dunlegh groaned.

"Isn't it my luck to be laid up with this beastly thing when we've got a commission like Walton's? And Ann Draper on the ocean! Lois, you'll, just have to swing it somehow, if I'm not beter in a day or two."

"But I never could!" cried Lois, appalled.

"But darling, we can't let him take a thing like that to another decorator. Aside from the money, think of the prestige that doing a place like his will give us!!"

Lois went home finally to her belated dinner, more than a little disturbed by her employer's illness and the predicament into which it plunged herself. After a chop and a salad and a peach tart, she curled up on the divan and began to sketch idly on a writing-pad the design for the salon of James Walton's Italian palace. It was midnight when she had finished.

Next morning she called Walton and told him that Mrs. Dunleigh was too ill to undertake the work for some time.

Cleron, a passenger in the Scanez car was badly cut by broken glass. Mrs. Paganini and three daughters who were passengers in the other car, were uninjured, as were also the two drivers.

HOLLYWOOD'S FILM SHOP

By RONALD W. WAGONER
United Press Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Sept 10 (UP)—An entirely new technique of motion picture direction came into existance with the talking films and it apparently will be some time before the art of megaphone wielding settles down into a definite mould.

When pantomine was the vogue of screen expression all directors operated more or less in the same manner—although it must be admitted they sometimes achieved very different results.

Today there is hardly any two directors who proceed along the same lines in the relatively new talkies.

So far two separate "schools of direction" have appeared — stage trained directors and those who learned the game in the silent movies. Both schools, however, have "black sheep," who ever so often take on habits and ideas of the other class.

It is the general practice in Hollywood to call the principal players for rehearsal three or four days prior to the start of production.

The stage trained men, such as George Abbott and John Cromwell demand even more time than that.

The other class trained in silent versions place less emphasis on the importance of prior rehearsal. Such directors as Victor Schertzinger, Rowland Lee and Frank Tuttle were accustomed to rehearsing scenes as they come to them with each day's work and they adhere to the habit. This class of director believes that a spontaneous freshness of performance results when rehearsals are held to a minimum just before they are to be photographed.

The directors of both classes appear to agree that the first reading of the script, with the parts of all players set down in detail, should be quite a ceremony.

The principals, director, chief camera man, prop chief and sound expert, gather around a long table in one of the hugh sound proof stages.

The director acts as sort of a master of ceremony for the solemn looking crew. He impressively reads each scene, giving the actors his interpretation of their thoughts, actions and emotions in all of the scenes. This process has been known to run from days into weeks—depending upon the director. If a temperamental star is in the group an argument sometimes developes as an interesting but disturbing sidelight.

Paramount studio carpenters provide miniature sets for blocking out doors, chairs, desks, etc. As the director and stars go through their rehearsals they sometimes look like children invcived in a game of blocks or hop-scotch.

The cramera man is supposed to take advantage of these rehearsals to plan his various camera angles. The sound expert decides where he can place the microphone to the best advantage and the head property man determines what "doo dads" his boys will have to scare up to dress the scene when the director decides it is time for action.

" HARVEST THE HANDS"

MOOREHEAD, Minn., (UP)—The annual "harvesting" of harvest hands has begun according to several who arrived here penniless after being robbed by transients. Advices from Wahpeton, N. D., said more than a score of harvest hands had lost their savings for the winter to hobos on freight trains and were searching for new jobs to recoup.

ENDURANCE CURSING

SOVIET STUDY ROADS

ST. PAUL, Minn., (UP)—Similarity of Minnesota's climate, terrain and road problems as well as pioneer work in road construction methods have brought three groups of engineers of the Soviet government here to study construction methods.

Unless the Southern Pacific Company's attention is called to these breaches it will continue to slight Menlo Park.

Edward Colling, for many years a resident of Hermosa Tract, left last week to reside in San Francisco, his former home. Mr. Colling is a custom official. His sister, Mrs. James Ward, with whom he lived, has sold her property in Hermosa and moved to the city. Both were well regarded here and it is with a feeling of regret that their departure is noticed.

The poor box at Corpus Christi Monastery was robbed last week of a small sum. There is no clue to the robbery. The man who would steal money from a poor box is capable of committing any crime on the calerdar.

With two petitions at hand from citizens on Live Oak avenue asking paving and one of them asking that the street be extended west to University Drive where the street ends now, the Mnlo Park city council on Wednesday night directed City Clerk Mrs. Kurtz to communicate with Mrs. Plate of San Francisco informing her that the council was adhering to the plan adopted a year ago which calls for the extension of the street. Mrs. Plate owns property on University Drive facing Live Oak avenue which she desired to build on.

City Attorney George Whitworth informed the council that legal requirements would put off definite action for 75 days. Ordinances would have to be adopted, a public hearing would take place and the council would have to determine what area would benefit by the street extension.

One petition called for asphaltic concrete paving. Another suggested rock screenings and oiling. City Engineer Mehl said that the first petition did not have 50 per cent of the property signed up. The petitions were filed for reference.

City Clerk, Mrs. Kurtz reported that for the month of August receipts to the road fund were $439 and to the general fund, $749. This left the balences as follows: Road fund, $3,472.96; general fund $1,-843.94.

The Southern Pacific wrote the council regarding the closing of the Watkins avenue crossing. The crossing is one-half in Atherton and one-half in Menlo Park. The company urged that the crossing was very little used. No action was taken.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Barman thanked the council for the assistance rendered them by the police department recently when their home caught fire.

Mayor Weeden announced the receipt of an invitation to the mayor and city attorney to attend conferences of mayors and city attorneys at Santa Cruz.

The Shasta Water Company asked to be reimbursed $5 as the company had paid a license fee twice last year. The matter was referred to the city attorney.

The council adjourned to Tuesday, September 16.

A carnival aggregation came to town this week to relieve the populace of its spare nickles and dimes. The concern pays the city a license of ten dollars a day.

The Menlo Park Fire Department on Wednesday received equipment consisting of a truck combination of a Ford water tank and chemical. The apparatus is the latest in fire fighting devices. The department is one of the best equipped of any in the county.

On Friday, September 12 the ladies of the Presbyterian church will give another one of their delightful bean suppers in the social hall of the church. A good attendance is expected.

Chief Love is not only a men hunter of rare ability but knows how to capture a monkey as well. The season for killing deer closes on Sunday. All hunters reported having a successful season.

On California Soil!

I am here to greet you personally---

I am here to thank you for the wonderful support you have given the Clarence Saunders stores, and to add my voice to the millions of others in acclaiming California as the garden spot of the world. Yes, and more, for it is not just the climate and beauty which excel in this great country of yours—it is that dauntless and fearless spirit with which you undertake to carry out the development of your enterprises.

It's that glorious freedom which you exercise in going about your own affairs, hampered not with precedents of the past—it is that remarkable trait of co-operation that you manifest in your dealings with fellow citizens, that unity of purpose to do for the common weal your utmost for the happiness and prosperity of your community—these are the beauties of California's people that I see and applaud — these attributes of your strength of character that I admire—so I shall pitch my tent amongst you as another co-worker for greater accomplishments yet to be achieved.

I'm a thorn in the side of the big interests, who control the consolidated chain store groups. They want me out of the way, so the combinations of Eastern Capital may get stronger while the public pays the bill.

Everything would be pretty and nice if Clarence Saunders could be removed from the Chain Store field, so they think.

But, folks, that's a job a little too hard for the big moneyed boys to do.

They cleaned me out of another chain organization because I wouldn't let them manipulate the stock of my companies according to their regular style.

Having not a dollar left of my former fortune, I started the first Clarence Saunders store on twelve thousand dollars furnished me by a few friends.

I was fought in every conceivable way to prevent my getting started again on the road to success. Notwithstanding the opposition, I have spread Clarence Saunders Stores into two hundred cities and towns in fifteen states and the sales volume per store exceeds the average volume per store of all the big chain store consolidations.

For the last year effort after effort has been made to either get me out or freeze me out of the chain store business but I am not going to sell out or get frozen out, for I have been merchandising since I was fourteen and I love it.

I like to create new ideas for merchandising even though copied by all the others for the imitator always lacks the genuineness of the original.

Always I have been a money maker but never at the expense of the public.

So it is now that I propose a plan that has big profit possibilities and yet will be a great benefit to the people themselves.

My plan does not include New York stock manipulators for I have had enough experience of that kind. My latest experience being a loan called for $500,000 against one of my companies, although this same crowd were supposed to put up one million dollars of new capital which they did not do. The result, a receivership for that company which has assets on a book value basis, that are sufficient to pay off in full. I expect to get those stores out of receivership in a few months. They thought a receivership would ruin me and refused to supply the new capital that would have avoided it. Here in California and in other States I have stores that are in no way affected by the trouble of the company in which the New York manipulators plied their trade of lending money and then calling the loan.

Success has not spoiled me into ignoring the fact that the great body of human kind is after all the most powerful of all strength. This is well illustrated by the fact that the stocks on the New York Stock Exchange fall in prices and continue to fall when the public refuses to trade. Business everywhere gets dull and no good when the multitude lapses in its buying power.

The rich and powerful of the New York manipulators twirl their thumbs and get sadder and sadder when America's host of millions of individuals the country over quit sending their dimes and dollars to the great metropolis. They find it impossible to get along in peace and prosperity when reduced to one rich man trying to get money out of another rich man. When they are milking the public they forget that after so long a time the dear people will go dry and refuse to let down the milk for the hungry New York milkers to fill their pail.

I have had sufficient experience with New York manipulators and am versed in their methods. I have learned my lesson to beware for all time to come. Well it would be for others to refuse to continue to feed their money to Wall street for it never comes back except as a toll to get more.

Individually there are many worthwhile citizens of New York but the system itself of the New York stock manipulators is all wrong and will bring disaster to anyone on the outside who gets sufficiently entangled with it. Let the people wake up and know that all the real wealth of the country lies outside of the gilded offices of Wall Street.

Let them know that prosperity lies at home in the development of home enterprises and not in sending money to the stock manipulators of Wall Street for them to keep ninety-five cents on the dollar and send back a nickel to get another dollar with.

In the East Bay District we have forty Clarence Saunders Stores which are doing a business of $4,000,000.00 annually on the present basis of sales, and what is good is that the New York stock jugglers do not control these stores. I want to expand these stores into many more so they will be in San Francisco and in all the trading towns of Northern California, to be operated by a company to be known as the Clarence Saunders Stores of Northern California, Limited.

More stores—a larger business will cut down operating costs, provide lower prices to the consumer and produce a larger net profit for the owners of the business. I want the people of this community as partners in the Clarence Saunders Stores and on a basis of real assets behind every dollar invested and not on the basis of bonuses as have been paid by the big Eastern controlled chain stores.

There will be no bonus stock issued to anyone. Each share of stock will have full voting rights with no preferred stock or bonds to be outstanding. I am not selling out, for the investment which I control in these stores is to remain and for it will be paid the stock of the new company at its par value based on tangible assets only. What I want is new money to expand my stores and I don't want to get it from Eastern Stock Brokers for all they do is to pay the original issue price and then sell it to the public at a price much higher. It is always the public that eventually pays for a business but usually after the insiders have cashed in at a high profit which leaves little profit and frequently none for the public. My last Eastern stock deal was on the basis of stock to the underwriting syndicate at $20 a share which was promptly sold to the public at $50 a share, although I had requested it not to be sold higher than $28 a share. I want the public to own stock in my stores on the ground floor basis and at such a price there is certainly a greater opportunity for profit to the people than to buy the stock after stock brokers have added twice and more to its original price for the public to pay.

Instead of the powerful interests of the East being your representatives in the case of your participating in the profits of the chain store business I am asking that you deal direct with me so that we may be partners together in the distribution of food products through the Clarence Saunders Stores.

A customer-owned chain of Clarence Saunders Stores is what you will have and all my knowledge of merchandising and every energy that I have for success will work for the prosperity of these stores. Instead of making money for the New York interests you will be making it for yourself.

Food distribution is the largest business of all and one of necessity whether times are hard or good, therefore the safest business of all. Regardless of the ups and downs of chain stores the last year, there is more profit in sight for the Clarence Saunders Stores than ever before. With the faith of the people and their co-operation we will, together, build up a business that all of us will be proud of and one that will run no risk of having it or its stock manipulated by Wall Street. Behind this business will be the consolidated purchasing power of all the Clarence Saunders Stores and throughout the United States one company after another will be organized on the same customer ownership basis so that in each case we will have a local company with a co-ordinated working arrangement through a central company that we may gain the advantages accruing to a national system of stores.

The Clarence Saunders Stores in the Los Angeles District will be operated by a local company to be known as the Clarence Saunders Stores of Southern California. Each of these local companies will be operated for the benefit of each community in which stores are situated. All banking of money will be done with California Banks and none will be sent to Wall Street or elsewhere. All insurance will be handled with California Agencies. All products of California will be given preference in the Clarence Saunders Stores. In every way we will undertake to build up the prosperity of the community in which a Clarence Saunders store is located.

And with the people themselves of California as stockholders in our company they will be the ones to receive the dividend checks. And don't forget that with two strong companies operating Clarence Saunders Stores in California their reputation will spread far and wide as a fine example of California prosperity. Such companies will have direct contact with other Clarence Saunders Stores throughout the country which will make possible a great outflow of California Products into other territories for sale through Clarence Saunders Stores.

We are on the eve of another cycle in business and now is the time to get ready to profit most from the prosperity that is bound to come by joining with me in the development of a chain food business to be owned by the people for the advantage and profit of the people themselves.

Further information may be had upon request.

"She was jealous because I had to show other actresses how to photograph well," Marley told Superior Judge Arthur Keech, "and pretty soon it began to affect my work."

Thelma Tood, screen actress, who said she had been a friend of the Marleys, corroborated the cameraman's testimony.

Marley was granted the divorce.

The film actress, who has been often in the news of late, is a former San Mateo girl, her father having been engaged in the drug business there.

IRONTON, Wis., (UP)—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Lawrence, who will observe the 67th anniversary of their marriage here in the fall, claimed another distinction when they completed their 40th year of living in the same house recently.

HOW TO SOLVE YOUR PROBLEMS

By James M. Heady, Psy. D.

Lesson No. 5
Graphology — Analyzing Character From Handwriting

Proving that you are talking about youself even though you have your mouth shut.

The handwriting incident at the feast of Belshazzar: "Mene, Mene, tekel, upharsin," were the words quoted. A rignificant fact connected with the translation of these "Thou art weighed in the balance and found wanting," is that people so often are, when their handwriting is analyzed.

Of course, Daniel's demonstration as a handwriting analyst was vastly different from the present day grapholist. The only analogy is that he read the writing and then read what was behind it and that is what we who have studied the subject preseume to do today.

Study is Old

Just how long the study of Graphology is no one can say. We have a record of the time of Emperor Nero, the lad who inmortalized himself by accepting the advice, "When your city catches on fire, be nonchalant, play the violin."

However, the record says that the suspicious monarch stated that a certain erstwhile favorite of his was to be sent into exile and he adds, "I fear him treacherous, as his handwriting shows it."

One of the first eminent people to bring graphology to the respectful attention of the world was the great Goethe, who with his friend Lavater, made extensive researches in the science by studying and comparing some hundreds of specimens of the writings of people well known to them.

In Italy also, it was Lombroso, the well known scientist, who studied the writing of defectives and degenerates and gave to the world his discoveries.

In addition to the traits and characteristics of the individual to a remarkable degree of accuracy (the proof of this I shall present to you in future articles, many other facts are delineated.

A graphologist who has had the training can see evidences of mental and physical weakness before either the individual or his physicians are aware of it.

In the olden days when saloons had swinging doors on the sidewalks and even the police knew where they were located, a boy walking down the street saw a drunk who had been making an effort to hang on to the lamp post, finally topple over into the gutter. Sticking his head into the barroom door the lad shouted, "Bartender, come out and pick up your sign, it's fell over."

Sign Tells Story

So when you sign yourself you are creating a sign that tells many things about you that he who can, may read.

A nervous breakdown is often seen in a sudden change in the pressure of the pen, or a dropping of the last words or two of each line or in an unusual downward tendency of the writing.

The trained observer can detect evidence of insanity in handwriting when the individual has been able to conceal it in every other way. A departure from the normal, mentality, always shows in a person's writing.

There are a few things that handwriting does not disclose, which reminds me of the ad in the Sunday paper. It read, "Would like a situation either as a lady's secretary or stenoghrapher for either a lady or a gentleman. Having been both I feel that I am able to qualify."

Masculine or Feminine

Sex is not indicated in handwriting, but another fact of equal or even greater importance is disclosed: Whether the individual preponderates in masculine or feminine qualities, I have in mind the writing of a physician friend of mine a man well past fifty, an excellent surgeon, whose handwriting would be mistaken for that of a high school girl. He is without exception the most tender, gentle, considerate individual I have known. No woman could exceed him in what is generally classified as feminine traits and yet the doctor is a "he man." He chews tobacco, smokes strong cigars and swears like a trooper.

On the other hand, I have analyzed the handwriting of more than one young woman of the dainty flapper type, who to the causal observer and even the analyst who was not a graphologist appeared only as a young lady with certain traits as indicated by temperament, profile, coloring, texture, etc., but her writing indicated a woman possessed of a boldness, aggressiveness and selfish, dominant powerful nature that classified her as predominating in masculine traits.

In this colmun in the near future, I propose to present a rather exhaustive study of graphology illustrated by specimens of handwriting. For today I will only attempt the statement of a few facts you can easily remembered.

Ascending writing indicates optimism, ambition, success and prosperity, one who is climbing the hill of Life successfully and even when tired says to himself, "Carry on!" and carries on.

Decending writing indicates the opposite life. Melancholy, a disappointed life, a tendency to be pessimistic and to worry. With some other signs it shows pride, snsitiveness and a depressed imagination.

Slant Indicative

The extreme shows a disordered mind. Of course, like the old Quaker who said to his wife, "All the world is queer but me and thee and sometimes thee is a little queer." Watch your writing for an extreme downward slant!

Many folks insist that their writing is the result of the system they were taught, but I have analyzed the writing of children less than ten years of age that disclose ambition, pride, egotism, weakness of character, etc., and yet these children were taught the same system, by the same teacher, under identical conditions.

Some people are careless and slovenly and regardles of age their writing shows it. Economy is indicated by one who fills the paper. A stingy person not only covers the page but writes along the margin also. Extravagance is shown by the use of large letters, uneven spaces and a waste of paper.

What Imitation Means

Many people attempt to imitate the writing of others. What better proof could exist of the development of the faculty of imitativeness, hero worship, inferiority complexes, type of ideal and other facts. Tell me whose handwriting you imitate and I'll tell you much about yourself.

Choice of a pen is important and an index of character. A sharp, quick vivacious person chooses a hard, medium or stub pen. A course person never uses a fine pointed pen if any other is available. Lazy folks, with easy temperament prefer soft easy writing pens.

The color of the ink is a large factor, in deciding the taste of the writer as is also the quality of the paper. The type of paper indicates the taste ,economy social standing, egotism, etc.

In conclusion remember this, In coming to a conclusion about a specimen of writing you will often find contradicting tendencies indicated. You may find tenderness of heart and well developed kindly emotions and other desirable traits in the writing of those who have been guilty of difinity crulety, unkindness and other undesirable acts. How do I explain it? Very simple, you will also find the index of the other traits also. It is your task to discover which predominate and to know of the existence of all the traits and characteristics of the individual.

Girl Scouts To Have Director; Planning Drive

Miss Jaynes To Supervisea Girl Scouting Groups In This District

With the arrival of its new director, Miss Ruth Jaynes, this community should feel that girl Scouting has taken a great stride forward.

Miss Jaynes arrived this week from Camp Edith Macy in the East, and is busy establishing herself in the Girl Scout headquarters at Sequoia High school where Principal Argo has offered the use of a room adjoining the Girl's Club room.

A group o fcapable woman under of leadership of Mrs. A. S. Kalenborn are working hard for the success of this new district which includes 10 Girl Scout troops and covers the communities of Redwood, Los Lomitas, Wodside, Menlo Park and San Carlos. "With a director of our own and the establishment of an office, our budget for this year will be considerably higher, but we feel that the benefit derived from having our own headquarters right here in our midst, will more than compen sate for the added expense." stated Mrs. Kalenborn.

The Girl Scout drive will take place the week of September 20-27 plans for which will be complete at a meeting of the committee held next Wednesday afternoon, September 17.

The community, especially mothers of Girl Scouts and those interested in girls, are most cordially invited to a reception to be given in the girl's club at Sequoia High school, this afternoon from 3 to 6 P. M.; honoring Miss Ruth Jaynes, the new Girl Scout Director, and as a farewell to Miss Alice Philipson who leaves soon on a European trip. Mrs. E. L. Kilbourn is chairman of the reception and will be assisted by High School Scouts.

Y. M. C. A. Drive Started Here

The annual campaign to cover the budget needs of the Young Men's Christian Association of San Mateo county for the coming year will start next Monday. Kick-off meetings will be held simultaneously in Redwood City, Burlingame and San Mateo at which time complete details of the campaign will be given to the workers. Organizations of workers are being set up to handle the work of solicitation in each of the following places: Redwood City, Woodside, San Carlos, San Mateo, Atherton, Menlo Park, Burlingame, Millbrae, Lomita Park, Hillsborough and San Bruno, the work in San Francisco the work is handled through the Community Chest.

D. W. Williams is General Chairman of the campaign in Redwood City with Carl Wagner, Henry Witte, and John Gill acting as Majors. Captains and workers are rapidly being lined up and indications point to a complete organization before the end of the week.

John D. Bromfield of Burlingame will head the campaign for the county which will run for fifteen days ending the last day of September.

The budget needs for the entire county for the coming year were set up and carefully checked through by a committee of close to forty prominent men of the various communities in the county and the goal of $10,250 was set for the the work.

Other general chairman to carry on the campaign in their respective communities are Lewis A. Nelson of Burlingame, Robert J. Hopkins of San Mateo, George A. Davs for Millbrae and Lomita Park, J. V. Neuman of Woodside.

Campaign directors will be Roy A. Hohberger for Redwood City, San Carlos, and Woodside; Robert W. Simcock and George McLean for San Mateo, Hillsborough, Millbrae and Lomita Park; Ed Hunt for Burlingame, George Chessum for Atherton.

Sportsmen To Fight Game Law Amendment

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10—Opponents of the proposed constitutional amendment No. 11 granting increased authority to the California State Fish and Game Commission scored heavily here today when two former members of the commission declared the proposel law "unwarranted and dangerous in principle."

Carl Westerfield, San Francisco attorney, and E. L. Bosqui of Walker, Siskiyou county, were the two erstwhile commissioners to state their opposition to the projected measure. Both men declared their personal experiences as members of the commission convinced them that the proposal is a "mistake."

Bosqui notified local officers of the Wild Life Development League, a statewide organization of sportsmen opposing the bill, of his position in the controversy.

Westerfield, through the same agency, issued a statement in which he declared that fish and game control, so far as the making of laws is concerned, should be "left in the hands of the State Legislature." He said:

"Heretofore the Legislature has always passed any reasonable law for fish and game in California. Almost ten years of experience as a the Fish and Game Commission convinces me that to take the power of law making from the Legislature and place it in the hands of the Commission would be a mistake.

"There is no provision in the Constitutional Amendment that members of the Commission shall have special qualifications for the office, or any knowledge of fish and game problems, yet under it they would gain full authority, 'unlimited by any other provision of the constitution," to make and enforce their own laws.

"The future of fish and game in California depends upon a constructive conservation program dictated by the people, and not by a commission of five men with arbitrary power and responsible to no one but the governor."

Westerfield likewise struck at provision of the proposed law exempting employees of the Commission from civil service, allowing the Commission to hire at will and to fix salaries, which he declared "a bid for politics."

When cold winds blow
~have a portable electric heater ready

Prepare now for the sudden changes from warm to cold weather.

Take your portable electric heater out of its hiding place. Polish its reflector. Remove the wire guard and screw the heating element tight. Make sure that the extension cord is neither frayed nor broken, and that the plug fits snugly into a convenience outlet. Now you have your heater ready for another season's use.

As you know, your portable electric heater gives a cozy beam of heat—in the bedroom, in the bathroom, or in the breakfast nook. And when the children come home with cold, wet feet the clean, healthful warmth helps prevent colds.

If you haven't a portable electric heater, you can see them on display at our office or your dealer's store.

Sequoia Loses in Last Quarter Of Season's First Football Game

After holding their heavy opponents for three quarters, the Sequoia Union High School varsity football team was defeated by the Galileo varsity squad 13 to 0 on the Sequoia field Admission Day.

Captain De Valley, star quarterback on the visiting eleven, intercepted one of Ed Cullen's passes on the 15-yard line and dashed 85 yards to the Cherokee goal behind perfect interference, to break the scoring ice. Later in the fourth quarter, following a short kick by Sequoia to the 30-yard line, the Lions again started touchdownward with DeValley, Ketela and Puccetti bearing the brunt of the attack. Fullback Maurer plunged his way five yards to plant the pellet across the Cherokee goal for the final touchdown. Puccetti bucked the ball over from the five yard line for the extra point.

The Purple and White had an opportunity to score in the third quarter, when Ed Cullen began pegging bullet passes over the line to Al Cleland and with Bob Albers assisting in running the ball the Cherokees were awarded first and ten on the Galileo 9-yard line. The feature of this drive was three passes from Cullen to Cleland one which netted 20 yards.

The Lions forward wall tightened up and held the Cherokees on the 4-yard line for three downs; and a pass that fell incomplete finished the Indians chances to score.

Cullen's 15-yard pass to Cleland placed the ball on the Galileo 15-yard line. On the next attempt pass DeValle intercepted to step off his 85 yards to the first touchdown.

Nip-and -tuck play featured the first quarter of the battle with acting captain, Charles DeLacy reeling off nice yardage through the center of the Lion's line, and Cleland assisting in advancing the ball with McQuilkin leading the interference pack. "Chuck" DeLacy was forced from the game in the second quarter with an injured knee.

The game found several Indian first stringers injured, but they are all expected to be in action by the next game. "Chuck" DeLacy, Al Cleland, Pete Lawler and Ed Cullen suffered minor injuries during the contest.

The Cherokees will meet Salinas next Saturday, on the Salinas field. Coaches Ray Dimick and Leonard Casanova were satisfied with the Cherokees showing against the Galileo team, which had two more weeks practice and had played one practice game with Vallejo already this season.

The Line-Ups
